Award-winning actor Ross Turner is probably best known for his recurring role as Liberty High School math teacher Mr. Wood in three seasons of the hit Netflix series Th1rteen R3asons Why. He is based in Los Angeles.

In 2007, after 20 years in theater and stand-up comedy, Ross made an unexpected leap to movies when Grateful Dead concert film director Len Dell'Amico noticed him performing on stage with the late Robin Williams. The result was a starring role in Dell'Amico's indie feature Welcome to Dopeland (2010). Since then, Ross has completed over 20 features and 50 shorts – many of which have earned official selections at top film festivals including Raindance, Mill Valley, SXSW, Tribeca, Sundance, and Palm Springs. In Japan, Ross has appeared in guest star roles on multiple episodes of the popular television series Sekai Gyoten News, and most recently on World Hanzai Mystery.

While primarily recognized for his lighter, comedic parts, Ross can get pretty dramatic – most notably starring opposite Jennifer Esposito in the horror/mystery From Black (2021); the father of a teen with Down Syndrome in A Normal Life (2018); and as the acerbic Dr. Walsh in Lifetime's original movie Forgotten Evil (2017) starring Masiela Lusha.

Ross credits his film success to extensive experience in live theater. His favored stage roles include Ché in Evita, The Dentist in Little Shop of Horrors, and Valere in La Bête. He is the recipient of two Best Actor awards for appearances at the Marin Fringe Festival (Audience Choice and Critic's Choice for his quick-change turn as two computer daters in George Dykstra's Lights, Camera, Love), and is also an Irene Ryan Award nominee.

Born and raised in Eureka, Calif., Ross is a fourth-generation native of Humboldt County. His media and performing arts family includes mom Donna Cleveland (former local television personality and Romper Room teacher), dad Bill Turner (college radio personality, singer, and stage actor), sister Heidi Turner (SAG and AEA actress), uncle Bob Turner (radio DJ, television host and news anchor), and grandmother Mable Turner (professional pianist and film organist during the silent movie era).

Ross' numerous film festival awards include 7 Best Supporting Actor prizes for his role in supernatural Western Ghost in the Gun (2019) opposite Tim Russ, and 3 Best Actor wins for his lead role in sci-fi drama The Bumbry Encounter (2019).

"This is Ross Turner's movie, no doubt; he gets the interesting character, the monologues and diatribes. He comes off as a guy off his meds and possibly on something harder."
